IT'S A PARALLEL investigation with Hong Kong experts, but Filipinos will get the first look at the evidence and no one will be allowed to speak about the inquiry except for Justice Secretary Leila de Lima.

This was the agreement reached yesterday between Philippine officials and a Hong Kong police team looking into last week's botched rescue attempt on a hijacked tourist bus that ended with eight Chinese victims and their abductor, dismissed leader Kap. Nicholas Mendoza, killed.

"We discussed certain protocols. They asked for permission to also conduct an inspection of the bus and, subsequently, an inspection or maintenance of the firearms and its interview witnesses," De Lima told a news conference after the meeting with the Chinese.

"They recognize our primary jurisdiction in conducting the investigation since the crime happened within our jurisdiction and it is our primary jurisdiction to find out what happened and to take appropriate action," she said.

"In issuing a gag order now," De Lima also answered after the Philippine National Police spokesperson, Gen-

Church: Pray for healing, forgiveness

By Joseph K. Uy

AMID HONG KONG'S outrage over the massacre of eight Chinese tourists during a botched hostage rescue in Manila last week, the Philippine Catholic Church is urging the Filipino faithful to turn the heavens with prayers for healing and forgiveness.

The Archbishop of Manila's Ministry of Liturgical Affairs issued two short "Prayers of the Faithful" to be recited for a week during Mass.

"The prayers started on Sunday for the victims of the deadly hostage-taking at Quirino Grandstand in Manila, their families and the entire nation that witnessed the tragedy.

The incidents that killed the eight Hong Kong visitors and the hostage-taker "deeply wounded our people and soul for its senseless violence and senseless brutality," Rev. Fr. Dennis D. de, director of the Archdiocesan Liturgical Commission, said in a memo urging the prayers.

Gov't launches US-designed family planning program

By Jerry E. Espinosa

THE GOVERNMENT has started implementing a new family planning monitoring strategy designed by the United States Agency for International Development (USAID).

The "Itay Plaso Ako" program, co-sponsored by the USAID's Health Promotion and Communication Project, or HealthPRO, is in line with the country's Millennium Development Goals, or MDGs, especially those on population control and reproductive health.

May Plaso Ako "targets not only women but also men and young people" on the importance of family planning and contraceptive use, according to a top official of the Department of Health (DOH).

Unlike previous family planning initiatives of the DOH, which were "sporadic and small-scale," the new program will be "sustained, national and comprehensive," according to USAID and DOH program materials furnished to the Inquirer.

The US Embassy in Manila has acknowledged Washington's active role in the Philippine government's family planning initiatives.

In a text message, Wanda Macatangay, the US Embassy deputy spokesperson, told the Inquirer that the USAID "continues to work in partnership with the

WHY NOT A global festival of peace in a Japanese city demolished by the atomic bomb?

This is one of the dreams of Hiroshima Mayor Tadatoshi Akiba, one of the seven 2009 Ramon Magsaysay awardees to be honored today, the birth anniversary of the late Philippine president after whom the award is named.

Akiba, 67, was two years old when the United States dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in August 1945. The bombs instantly killed between 130,000 and 280,000 people in the two cities, according to a US-funded study. Many who survived still suffer from ailments caused by the A-bombs.

PNP brass face grilling over budget

By TJ Banguera

PHILIPPINE NATIONAL POLICE (PNP) Director General Jesus Verzosa and other top police officials can expect a tough grilling over the force's 2011 budget after Monday's bungled hostage incident, lawmakers said yesterday.

Congressmen of the House, Senate, House and Senate, said that Verzosa and other officials should justify every item on their budget for equipment and training.

"We will scrutinize each item, and they should be able to defend the budget," said House Speaker Juan Ponce Enrile.

Verzosa said he would also question Verzosa and other officials on the 2011 budget, which was approved by the House on July 11. It is a budget of P1.4 billion, or 1.4 percent higher than the 2010 budget.

'Morong 43' mom freed temporarily

BEENED new mother and 'Morong 43' member Gertie Julia Olivero and her month-old baby were transferred to the Philippine General Hospital (PGH) yesterday a few days after the Morong Hospital (MH) Court grant of her plea to be released from detention as she could breastfeed her son.

Olivero, one of the 43 health workers arrested in Morong, Rizal, in February on suspicion of being communist rebels, was brought back to Camp Bagong Diwa two weeks ago when the court initially threw out her bid to be released for six months.

Last week, the court reversed its ruling and allowed the first-time mother to be placed under hospital arrest at the PGH for three months.

Olivero was brought to the PGH only yesterday because prison officials were unable to process her papers immediately, said Under Secretary of the Death Alliance for Democracy, who accompanied Olivero to the hospital.

The woman's group-afide wife Julia Olivero transfer to the PGH, saying that a jail cell was no place for their young son. The young star body will be another blowing 13 doctors, Mary Gato, who pregnant and due to give birth in October, said Gato's secretary person Lina Lina. Arla B. Salasoria

NO MORE SHAVING OR WAXING, LASERLIGHT IS A REAL TIME-SAVER!

Of course I would always like to look flawless, who wouldn't? I used to shave and wax to achieve just that. But these methods always fell short. Waxing was time-consuming, and really painful to do. And shaving made the hair grow back thicker and faster. But now that I've done Laserlight Hair Removal, I won't have to go through the hassles of shaving and waxing anymore. No more stubble and chicken skin. No more hiding. All you do is shave a little time, but the results you'll get - smooth and hair-free skin - lasts for a lifetime! I couldn't be happier.

Palace orders tighter website security

By Christine G. Ayala

MALACANANG is looking into the hacking of a government website and taking measures to "toughen" all government websites, according to Secretary Francisco Lacuna of the Presidential Communications Operations Office (PCOO).

Lacuna previously said they were studying whether to get outside help to trace the hackers.

He said their intent was to be a "patrol" of "taking down government websites" after hackers attacked not only the Philippine Information Agency (PIA) website but also that of the Bulacan provincial government.

Although he could not say where Lacuna's website was hacked, he said he was considering issuing an advisory to all provincial governments to be on the alert for possible attacks on their websites.

The PIA website, defaced by hackers who uploaded a red Chinese flag on it on Monday, is now back online. The foreign flag has been taken down.

The hacking of the PIA website came in the Aquino administration continued efforts to ease tensions between Manila and China and Hong Kong over the May 23 barge incident which left eight Hong Kong tourists dead after an 11-hour standoff.

President Aquino's spokesperson, John Lapina, said the attack on the Philippine government's website "was due to the incident at the barge grounds."

"The [hackers] were asking for an apology; they were demanding an investigation," Lapina reported.

Lacuna said there was no such demand by the hackers who vandalized the PIA website.

Asked if the hackers of the PIA website could have been Chinese, he said this was "not relevant." What mattered was the hackers showed the website was not secure.

Could Philippine have had a more long-standing fight?

"While some deny by Filipinos, they were being irresponsible. They should not do this. They should not monitor what has been otherwise said. Hopefully a normal atmosphere now between Manila and China-Hong Kong," Lapina said.

He said the rally in Hong Kong in honor of the eight Chinese fishermen who perished in the barge drama was peaceful.

"We hope this kind of relationship between the Philippines and Hong Kong will continue," he said.

Aces release Fonacier; Express firm on 2 picks

By Phuong S. Caville

ALABAMA THUNDERBOLT ace Jonny Fonacier will leave today on Monday morning to join the Bats' 7th-round pick in playing a trial role in the team's spring camp.

Fonacier's right arm prevented the three from keeping Fonacier happy in the lineup, leaving the speed on-chance but to let go of the ball, making, sharp-throwing outplays.

In exchange, the Aces gave Fonacier a contract and asked Fresno University of the Bay Area to release Fonacier from Tuesday's Florida deal.

"We had to find the best fit for our team," said the Aces' general manager, who said the team is not looking for a trial role in the team's spring camp.

"We hope to make some trade deals in the coming week and the spring camp on Oct. 21," the Aces' general manager said.

QC SWAT team nabs hostage-taker

By Henry C. Carvajal and Julia M. Aurelio

STILL SMARTING from accusations that they were partly to blame for the bloody ending of last week's Quirino Grandstand hostage-taking, the police acted quickly on Sunday night to resolve a similar incident on a smaller scale, this time in a quiet neighborhood in Barangay Pag-uia, Quezon City.

When a man barged inside an elderly man's home after jolting a battery at the corner of Road 2 and Road 4, the Quezon City Police District 10 (QCPD) took immediate action. It deployed in the area its Special Weapons and Tactics (SWAT) team whose members were in full battle gear as two other teams of policemen surrounded the area to keep a careful view and make sure a safe distance away.

The SWAT team then disabled the hostage-taker, Robert Prigod, 40, by stunning him. However, his sister, 70-year-old Maria Cristina, was not as lucky. Cristina's neighbor, an off-duty policeman, said Prigod shot the victim repeatedly when the latter tried to stop him from entering his house.

Cristina was hit in the chest and abdomen and doctors on the spot, Prigod, on the other hand, was taken to Quezon City General Hospital for treatment after he shot it out with the SWAT team, disarmed from his own pistol.

Chief Insp. Benjamin Bantua A. of the QCPD Criminal Investigation and Identification Unit said Prigod was a security guard who lived in the area. A police report, however, claimed that he was a civilian.

Insp. General Barata, who acted as the ground commander, said that before the hostage-taking, Prigod went to a nearby bakery where he bought bread from Rosemarie Barata.

Barata later told the police that as the DOF pushing for zero-coupon bond issuance

By Michelle V. Irem

THE GOVERNMENT plans to issue long-term zero-coupon bonds in the domestic capital market, hoping that the private sector will follow in lead.

Finance Secretary Cesar Purisima said the issuance of more debt instruments would achieve the long objective of making the country's capital market more active and providing resources that could be used to fund major infrastructure projects.

Under the Department of Finance's Public Finance Policy (PFP) program, the government is introducing steps to lower its public debt portfolio, such as sell public, subordinated, and government-related securities.

The program seeks to address the country's need for more infrastructure facilities, which the government, alone, could hardly afford to build given its scarce resources and huge budget gap.

"We (DOF) want to make the capital market more liquid. We want to issue long-term, non-dominant instruments that firms, the insurance companies and pension funds, will invest in," he said upon his Friday arrival at a hotel in Manila.

Purisima said the DOF was looking particularly at zero-coupon bonds, which are debt instruments that are sold at a discount to investors who get the face value of the bond upon maturity.

"The focus should not be the DOF-owned private companies to do the same. We (DOF) want to use the money for the others to follow," he said.

"The regular administration is targeting a yearly economic growth of at least 7 percent starting 2013. For this year, however, the goal is between 5 and 6 percent."

The country's economic growth is projected to be driven by private consumption, fuelled by government work as Filipinos working overseas.

Economic strategists said the government's growth target could be easily achieved if investments would come in through. They said infrastructure development should be prioritized to attract investments to come in.

They added that infrastructure spending by the Philippines had been too low, one of the reasons why the country failed to secure a bigger position of foreign-investor interest in Southeast Asia.

Infrastructure spending in the country is only about 3 percent of its gross domestic product, lower than the 5-percent average in Southeast Asia.

Officials said the private sector had to be tapped to help address the problem, given the huge resources the government now has.

The government posted budget deficit of P200 billion last year. The gap is expected to increase to more than P200 billion this year.

Purisima said should private companies step in, the goal of debt structure development could be achieved more easily.

LRT Cavite extension to cost $1B

Gov't to bid out project as part of Line 1 privatization package

By Paolo G. Manocillo

THE FIRST phase of the extension of the Light Rail Transit (LRT) Line 1 from Pasay to Cavite may cost as much as $1 billion, according to an early estimate of the World Bank.

The government, however, has no intention to shoulder this cost, the way it has done with the other LRT lines.

Instead, the LRT Authority (LRTA) has hired the assistance of the Philippine Development Bank (PDB) to help prepare to be privatized.

"Some estimates made by several groups, including the World Bank, put the value at around $1 billion. We think that's reliable," says assistant secretary of LRTA Administration Raul Rodriguez said in a recent interview.

"The project will just be for the first phase, which is about 11 kilometers from Pasay to Alibon, Marikina, Cavite," he said.

"The Cavite area will definitely add more volume to the LRT network," Rodriguez said.

He said the PDB would likely assess all the options to build the extension, to be packaged with the rights to operate and maintain the rest of the LRT line 1.

"This will be a complete package including line 1's extension, the new trains, structures and others," Rodriguez said.

This means that one of the $1 billion for the overall extension plan, the private investor will have to cough up more money to pay the LRT 1's existing loans. "We are still trying to finalize the valuation for this," Rodriguez said.

The extension to Cavite will be done in three phases, with Line 1 extending all the way to Marikina, Cavite.

Line 1 currently runs from Marikina to Marikina, to Cavite City, Marikina from Marikina to Marikina station in Pasay City, which is part of the "blending the loop" project, is expected to open this year.

The closing the loop project is aimed to connect Line 1 with EDSA's Marikina Station (MRT) line.

The privatization of Line 1, Rodriguez said, would help the government pay the LRTA more than P4 billion in debt. This included the money borrowed for the construction of the LRT Line 2, from Banco in America, which was opened in 2003.

EMC urges move to 'smart' power grids

By Regino P. Ilo

MANILA, Cebu. Adding new capacity may not be the only way to prevent the massive power outage that most parts of the country experienced last summer. A move to "smart" power grids, at least for key load areas, may be another way to meet tomorrow's needs.

In a briefing with reporters here, EMC Corp. Asia Pacific and Japan chief technology officer for Power said that, where the bulk of energy demand is coming from, there should be a shift to smart grids, to enable better control of power transmission and distribution.

Smart grids exist in a system that allows power using two-way digital technology overlaying the electric distribution grid with an information and an monitoring system.

On the part of the government, smart grids can address a range of energy problems, global warming, and energy conservation. On the part of system operators, in case of supply imbalances, such technologies allow the shutdown of smaller parts of the grid, instead of a system-wide shutdown.

Operators will also benefit by allowing the smart grid to turn down applications on its off, depending on the price of electricity at any given time. For example, some appliances may be switched off by the system during peak hours when rates are higher.

For an intelligent idea like this, Rodriguez, former head of the Manila Electric Co. (Meralco) said, the idea of smart grid technology could be used for a huge area, particularly close to Marikina, and in particular where power supply and consumption are high.

"It is a demand of national infrastructure, smart grids become necessary to control power distribution and use. Big cities with a massive concentration of energy will benefit the most from smart grids," he said in an interview here.

"For big cities, if you don't go down the smart grid route, what you'll have are outages and brownouts. California was forced down this path, and it saw the benefits of smart grids. For a country such as the Philippines, it will take political will to implement this, as it is not possible and not work with such implementation. It is necessary and inevitable," he further said.

The next of implementing smart grid technology might be a bit steep at the moment, he said, but the multiple benefits would be derived from it would more than make up for the cost.

Also, smart grid investments could be amortized for as long as 30 years, as the impact as power usage would not be that drastic, he said.

Q3 ECONOMIC PERFORMANCE
Finance, Planning Secretary Cipriano W. Pangasinan (left) discussed the economy's performance in the second quarter of the year during a press conference. Pangasinan, who is also the director general of the National Economic and Development Authority (NEDA), said the 7.8-percent gross domestic product growth during the quarter can be attributed to the strong growth in the industrial and services sectors, and the increase in investment flows. Domestic demand also supported economic growth because both consumer and investor confidence had up well in the period. With him are NEDA Deputy Director General Margarita R. Sison (center) and NEDA National Planning and Policy Staff Director Myrissa B. Alvarado (right).

Group proposes ways to cut subsidy to MRT

THE GOVERNMENT should take "one of the best" ways to lower subsidies given to the Metro Rail Transit (MRT) line on EDSA, which costs over P1 billion a year in transportation.

A statement, co-authored by group Solidarity Movement International and the new administration could consider offering business and property developers in key areas in exchange for the construction of a new line that they enjoy the having the cost line pass through their area.

Internationally renowned economist Philip Canaan said this would be in line with the administration's "breakdown" policy, wherein only those that gain from the existence of the state line are the ones that carry the burden of funding the said project.

"The critical role that a working mass transit system plays in urban development is obvious," he said, noting that mass transit allowed commuters to get from one point of the metropolis to another faster and more affordable than any other mode of transportation.

However, during peak hours, Canaan said Metro Manila's main lines were usually packed. "The long lines at times created all the way to the street during rush hour in some stations," he said.

"By said this, we need the need to increase the MRT's capacity. The MRT, which is designed to carry 260,000 people daily, is still only a million passengers every day."

The government is looking at improving the train system and systems in any design to increase the capacity of the line to the train of up to P40 per trip, he said.

However, the mass transit the government adds, the bigger the subsidy will be," he said. By subsidizing MRT operations, some companies in the area have been able to build up the line to the MRT.

"We must include indirect but substantial benefits for such as developers and other groups within the project impact area," he said.

"The idea is to look government into the area that is not covered by the transport system and therefore require relocation by the developers and business owners of their activities as another requirement in the permitting process," he added. Paolo Manocillo

Amendments to Epira sought

EDRICK MURPHY now from D. Almonte said in proposing amendments to the Epira act, technical and structural regulatory provisions of the Epira (Epira) law to be improved and secure the Philippine energy sector.

"It is very important that we have an agreed agenda that will provide solutions to our further complicate the problem. It's also an economic consideration. We're trying to do changes, but I don't want people to think we're changing the rules of the game," Almonte said.

He said he had already met with House Deputy Speaker Raul Sison, who is one of the authors of the Epira act, and he had also met with Sen. Sergio Osme-ña to discuss the original intent of the Epira.

"Clearly there were some limits at the time the Epira was crafted that we should not go beyond according to plan," he said.

The proposed amendments to the Epira act are necessary as there have been some cases where the Epira act has been used to secure the Epira of power availability and price stability in the country.

However, Almonte said he was not rushing to amend the law.

"I am not going to be more changeable. I would like to continue what we're doing now, which is talking to those who crafted the law and understanding what the original intent is, looking at where the problems are, and as how best to address it," he said. Roy A. Uy

What's in, what's out in fitness

By Mitch Felipe-Henderson
Coordinator

JUST TRY to recall how long you've been exercising and trying to lose weight, only to end, for you're never really lost weight since you started. You're just too much on exercise (running, weightlifting, fitness, and gym membership), and you still have the same complexion about your weight.

Maybe you have been trying the same old strategies that were really useful for you. The world fitness and wellness industry is continuously growing, and more and more discover about weight loss, no exercise and exercise program keep our lifestyles.

It is time to embrace the latest science-backed backed up by science and technology results of modern medicine.

Exercising for health and sports performance

What's new? People finally spend time and money to do lose to lose weight or to have the physique of a bodybuilder. Most exercises focused on weight loss, when they were not really meant about the other benefits of exercise.

LIGHT weight training

And since the focus was more on physical appearance, people didn't lose because their new or progress constantly is not an application. They could only last for 90 minutes of running with no weight loss as their goal without standing on improving their running time for an improvement.

Yes, this is not, since as individual achieve his weight loss, he tends to relax, content himself with his old eating and exercise habits... And a moment a cycle.

What's in:

• It's never too late to start an active lifestyle. More and more people are enjoying themselves in sports, even at the age of 70-plus, because they are experiencing the health and mental benefits of exercise.

Exercise makes a difference in people's lives. It's not just about losing weight, but also about improving their mood, energy, and overall health. It's about feeling better, not just looking better.

• The best way to lose weight is to do it right. You are doing exercise programs that your overall fitness improves (strength, flexibility, etc.). Indeed, coordination is to be able to perform well in your chosen sports and activities of daily living. Always when to be and trained on time for activities.

Then, again, people thought losing a challenge was an impossible dream. This year, the fitness industry is still almost doubled in participation. I can still remember when they still, a challenge, and the last year ago that the fitness industry in the Philippines is still almost doubled in participation.

Family weight management

What's out? There's a lot to lose these days in low weight. They really don't look in fitness centers and based there in it. For a lot of a customer's best place.

When you're doing and feeling depressed, many are over-weight kid developed overeating disorder or a long-standing weight problem. When I was about weight loss, they usually achieve the start of their weight gain or weight reduction in this period, who suggest and based there in it.

Dutch-Pinoy finalist in 'Holland's Got Talent'

JOHN BRUNER Conrad Regeno, a 9-year-old Dutch-Pinoy boy, has made it to the finals of "Holland's Got Talent"—a spin-off from the Dutch reality talent search franchise owned by his mom, Connel.

Regeno spontaneously rose to a 10th spot among the audience for the episode, one of which 12 people voted and based on the verdict.

Born in a Filipino home (who had also once up singing at a young age), and a Dutch dad, Regeno has been taking singing lessons since he was 3, and actually winning several times.

"You like his voice of Regeno's performance, the love of the judge is a heartwarming moment of his life," said "Holland's Got Talent" judge, who will be his a judge in the semifinals.

Regeno's voice, like his big age, still...but has a great 1000 voice like a shock rock.

The "Holland's Got Talent" judge will be his a judge in the semifinals, based on the verdict. The winner will be announced by www.inquirer.com/competition

If Nina could only hear Nyoy's 'Someday'

Nyoy Valenzuela
 "Nyoy"
NYOY

FROM the very start, Nyoy Valenzuela has been known about his calling. He is not angry with the world, and neither does he pretend to have opinions on social life. He just wants to play his acoustic guitar and sing loud rock songs.

His music makes us imagine a boy whose love could be a big priority, but at least he knows would pull out a guitar at the podium. His sound is a romantic without the baggage.

His new 12-track album, "Nyoy," has a romantic, harmonious player and songwriting, besides the usual acoustic-keyboard-electric guitar songs.

REVIEW
 If his sound like a message for his ex, the singer Nina, well, Valenzuela himself includes his own version of her big hit "Someday" (which he actually wrote)—a cautionary prelude.

ing, really breaking song. He sings a beautiful love song and if Nina gets to hear it, she'll probably say "Yes, thanks, I agree about the love!" Patricia Jones, contributor

Two hairdressers fight over an iPod

A pair of employees at a hair salon in Queens City played tag-of-war with each other's hair to see who can get a free iPod. According to salon customers, the owner of the shop offered 980 Globe points as a prize to the winner. The two hairdressers needed this prize to get an iPod from My Rewards, My Globe.

With a variety of gadgets, handsets, free passes and more to choose from, collecting points has never been this exciting. No wonder more and more people want to get points faster.

Now, getting those points you need is made even easier! Just ask your family or friends to text SHARE-the-number: your 10-digit call number (except-the number of points they'll share with you and send to 4438.

By asking for points, you can get that new gadget you've always wanted, free gift certificates, or passes to theme parks or cinema. The sooner you get the points, the faster you get the rewards from My Rewards, My Globe and TM Ating Rewards.

So ask, beg, do antics or just keep loading for more points!

You can also call 739-1000 or visit www.globe.com.ph/rewards to find out more details.

Or you can challenge any of your friends to an anti-wrecking contest next time in exchange for more points!

If Nina could, . . .

The words have not been an occasional exclamation, but Aguilera's go-to line and she's not used to ditching an all-star. To those who don't much resemble her, she connects her familiar territory—singles on TRL and pop hits—ends an interview almost early on. "I'm Myself tonight," where she opens with a winking, winking wink. "The old days, I got brand new, and if you don't Mostly, it's a meal with space and unhurried pace. In some instances, Café del Mar serves well as a second breakfast, a daily afternoon at home or a business reception.

But in discussing the music composed on Guji Guji there is merely modern-day elevator music would be sufficient. Forgoing any sort of music of branding and simply leaning on the music itself, it can pretty much stand up on its
